CHINA SEA.

SHANGHAI DISTRICT.

Dangerous Shoal to Eastward
of the Great Yangtze Bank.

NOTICE is hereby given that Captain
W. JAMESON, of the S. S. Chiquet, reports that his Vessel, when in latitude
32° 10' North and longitude 125° 10' East (approximately), and during 20 feet, struck something causing her to lurch slightly.

As this position is practically the same as that in which the S. S. Socorro, drawing 20 feet, experienced a severe shock in June last, and is in the neighbourhood in which the S. S. Shenhai, obtained soundings of 9 fathoms in 1879, it appears certain that a shoal, with 20 feet of water or less over it, exists in this locality.

British Admiralty Chart No. 2412 (large corrected October, 1897), shows 23 fathoms near the above position.

The China Mail.

HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1900.

Our attention from the first days of the present crisis—down to the day has been almost exclusively concentrated on the doings in and around Peking, and with the great and momentous questions regarding the future settlement of China, so much so, that more local and provincial considerations have been nearly left out of sight, if not entirely forgotten.

Many have been trusting implicitly in the oracular statements of men who either are or ought to be authorities. They have assured us again and again that all is well in South China, and that there is nothing to fear. A good deal of doubt may be brought forward in support of this view, and it would be both interesting and instructive if those who hold it would consent to make known the reasons that have led them to this most comforting conclusion.

In the meantime it cannot have failed to strike the ordinary reader that the evidence of a great and growing unrest in the Canton Province is becoming very plain. Of course the most important point is not the uprising that have already taken place or that may take place in the near future, but rather, have the officials the will and the power to control the lawless element of the population? No very emphatic statement can be made either as to their willingness or unwillingness. Some mandarins have shown themselves most anxious to repress all rioters, but on the other hand many have acted in a very half-hearted manner which has practically amounted to encouraging the rebels. The Acting-Viceroy and the men directly associated with him, like the Nam Hoi Magistrate, have done well on paper, and they have given forth no uncertain sound. The false rumours have been denounced in every case and the truth facts given to the people. That good has come from these official proclamations is certain, but it is to be feared that this applies to a comparatively small part of the population from whom no danger was ever seriously apprehended. The heart of the people has become so imbued with the idea that China has won great victories over the Allied Armies that no mere verbal statement is in itself sufficiently strong to move it. The illogical Chinese mind cannot perceive the glaring contradiction that is involved in the proclamation that the foreigners have coerced him to announce the defeat of the Chinese and the victories of the foreigners knowing all the time that it is the foreigners who have been defeated. If that is true how does it come about that the foreigners are still powerful enough to control the Viceroy? Nothing will be gained by trying to bury the fact that this idea has laid hold of the minds of the people. The rioting on the East River, North River and in the Sz Yap takes its rise directly from the belief that China has proved victorious over her enemies. In Canton many of the Proclamations have been torn down and the cry of men hawking false Imperial Edicts is once more heard in the streets of this city. Such a thing would have been impossible in the days of Li Hung Chang's rule. It was well said that "when Li took his departure that the robbers and all belonging to that class returned." As showing the worthlessness of Proclamations unless there is a sufficient force behind prepared and ready to make them respected it may be mentioned that the Viceroy's Proclamation was posted in San U City on the 4th day of the 8th moon. On the following day the rioters began operations. It puzzles the brain of a foreigner to see how such a thing was possible, but the fact remains all the same. The Viceroy's orders were "that converts were not to be molested and that means were to be taken for their protection." The interpretation put on this document by the rebels, was that converts were to be arrested and plundered. The soldiers took it to mean that they were not in any way to interfere on behalf of the converts. Hence they connived at all that was done and doubtless shared in the spoil. What has been the attitude of the mandarins in the disturbances that have occurred in this part of China up to now? It is not unfair to describe their action or rather inaction as most apathetic. In no case have they taken preventive measures, and after the rioting and looting they have done next to nothing to bring the offenders to justice. The Shun Tak case is no exception. All the credit for what has been done is due to the energy of the French Consul and the visit of the French gunboat to the scene of the disturbances. It is an interesting illustration of what may be done when sufficient pressure is brought to bear on the officials, and for that reason it is well worth keeping in mind for future use. No steps have been taken to protect the converts on the North River or make good their heavy losses. When it is remembered that a four-

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

Notes by the Way.

The extraordinary general meeting of the Jockey Club is convened for 3.45 on Saturday, 13th October.

The return of plague cases up to noon on the 3rd October showed that 1 fresh case and 1 death occurred during the preceding 24 hours.

Strait papers announce that Pollard's Lulliputian Opera Company, after completing their season at Singapore, are to proceed to Penang and Calcutta.

G. M. Schilling, a globe-trotter who has undertaken to walk round the world from New York for a wager, arrived at Colombo the other day. From there he proceeds to India to walk overland before turning to the Straits.

On September 19, the Queen received the Madras troops from Africa. The Queen, inspecting the Madras Sappers at Balmoral, addressed the men and said: "I am very proud of my Indian Army and watch with the greatest interest the excellent work they have been doing in Africa and China." Her Majesty afterwards conversed with the Sergeant in charge.

A 'Sick' Man's Mean Trick.

A coolie played a very nasty trick on his lodging-house mates the other day. It appears that he, along with 20 or 30 other coolies, lived in a boarding house on Kennedy Town. On the 26th ult., he said to the other lodgers that he would stop at home because he was not feeling very well. The others accordingly went to their work and left the sick (3) man in the cook-house along with the cook. Pretending that he was getting worse, he sent the cook out for some medicine. The cook, willing to help a lodger in pain, rushed off for the required dose. He returned in a short time no doubt expecting to meet the lodger in spasm on the floor. Instead of this, however, the lodger was gone and had ransacked the house, taking goods worth him of the aggregate value of $300. The police were informed, and, some days later, discovered a number of the articles in pawnshops. The 'sick' man was arrested last night, and to-day, Mr. Hazeland ordered him to prison for two months with hard labour.

Boers in Ceylon.

The Boer prisoners in Ceylon are affording a fair amount of excitement for the residents in Colombo. Two of the prisoners have already made their escape from the camp, but were arrested in a Buddhist temple after aimlessly wandering about for a day and a night. Later on three other men attempted to give the camp the slip, but the attempt was frustrated by the sentry on guard, who at once captured them. It seems that the prisoners cannot be punished for attempting to escape. A fatal affair has resulted in one man named Von Bulow being held in close custody for manslaughter. Von Bulow was placed in charge of the prisoners' piano, with certain instructions as to its use. A quarrel, at first of quite a trivial nature, arose between Von Bulow and the deceased regarding the piano. Words eventually came to blows, and a 'stand-up' fight ensued. The deceased received an unlucky blow from his opponent and died almost immediately. A small typographic publication entitled the Diyatavaa Dm Dm constitutes the Boer prisoners' newspaper, offered for sale at ten cents a copy. It is a small sheet about twice the size of a sheet of note paper, and it has several Dutch and English advertisements. One offering to take photos is particularly amusing. The letter-press is in English, and is a long and eulogistic article on the kind treatment the prisoners acknowledge to have received from Col. Vincent and Capt. Jemo Coope. There is a picture at the top of the page representing a Mauser bullet flying through the air with wings attached, and alongside it a Dum-Dum bullet exploding, which shows that our prisoners still are ignorant of the fact that no Dum-Dum bullets have been used by our troops in the war.
